Friends of Romsey Abbey Privacy Statement

Introduction

The new General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) came into force on 25 May 2018 and replaced the 1998 Data Protection Act. This regulation requires us to provide the information given in the Privacy Statement. This provides information about how we use your data, how you can control the way in which we use that data, and what actions you can take if you would like to change the way in which your data is being used.

How we gather information

Data is entered into our database by our membership secretary when a member completes a membership application form. Bank account details are only collected and held if a member asks for his or her subscription to be collected by standing order or if we require to make a payment to them for various purposes.

What we do with your data

The personal details held about you will be used only by The Friends of Romsey Abbey to manage membership subscriptions and to send you information about events, activities and fundraising appeals, which we think will be of interest to you. All information passed to another Trustee is password protected.

Protecting your data

Data is kept secure on our database with appropriate security measures in place. No data is publicly accessible online.

In order to save considerable sums in postage, some deliveries from The Friends are made by some of our members who volunteer to deliver to a few addresses near where they live. Consequently, the member who is responsible for deliveries to you will be made aware of your address.

How long do we keep your data

We will keep your data while you are a member and until such time that we do not believe that your membership is likely to be renewed.

Our Responsibilities

The law requires us to tell you about the legal basis upon which we process your data. The law allows us to process your data if it is in our legitimate interest to do so. We may only do so if we can demonstrate a business need, and so long as your 'interests or your fundamental rights and freedoms are not overridden.' Practically speaking this means that we conduct an exercise to check that we will not cause you harm by processing your data, that the processing is not overly intrusive and that we will only do so in a way which is described in the Privacy Notice.

Where you have provided bank account details to enable us to collect your subscription by standing order, those details will be used only for the collection of subscriptions and will not be used for such purposes as payment for events or donations.

Your Rights

You have a variety of rights about the way we process your data. These are as follows:

- Where we rely on our legitimate interest to process data, you may ask us to stop doing so.
- You may request a copy of the data that we hold about you.
- You may ask us to cease sending you information by post or email.
- You may change or stop the way in which we communicate with you or process data about you, and if it is not required for the purpose, you provided it, then we will do so.
- If you are not satisfied with the way we have processed your data, then you can complain to the Office of the Information Commissioner.
